ABSTRACT

A touch screen improved with reflection rate of light, wherein a retardation film at a touch panel is laminated with special ink in multiple layers to pass through an anti-reflection treatment for reduction of reflection rate of light glaring on eyes caused by diffused reflection of light and for improvement of permeability rate of light coming from an LCD mounted thereunder, thereby optimizing a brightness of the touch screen.